U.S. Policy Endangering World Peace, Gromyko Charges After Defeat In U.N.

100,000 Japs Stage Leftist Demonstration

TOKYO (AP) — Wildly dancing, screaming columns led by leftists laid siege to Parliament Thursday in a demonstration of 100,000 people against Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's pro-American policies and President Eisenhower's visit here next month.

Waving big red flags, the demonstrators zigzagged tirelessly around the white stone Diet building for hours. They roared "down with Kishi," "Don't come Ike" and "crush the U.S.-Japan security pact."

"Yankee, Go Home"

Later, a column of 16,000 snake-danced past the U.S. Embassy in a noisy 2½-hour demonstration. They rattled the Embassy's shuttered windows with chants like "Send back the U2s." Communists chanted: "Yankee, go home."

The demonstrations in Tokyo were the biggest and noisiest in the history of both the Diet and the embassy. They were by far the biggest of the nationwide protests against Kishi and the security pact in which a million people were reported to have participated throughout Japan.

Circling the Diet from afternoon until night, the leftists — mostly Socialists, unionists and university students—were under orders to prevent Kishi from leaving the structure. They held him prisoner inside for eight hours, forcing him to cancel a meeting with visiting President Sukarno of Indonesia. He finally slipped out a side entrance when the crowd thinned late at night.

In spite of the din and the dust they raised, most of the demonstrators were kept under control by their leaders. The police also exercised unusual restraint.

Stone Police

Members of the Radical Zengakuren Students Federation threw stones sporadically at police in an effort to start a riot. Seventeen police were reported hurt, but only a few injuries were serious. Some of the students also tried to light a fire under a police truck. This was extinguished quickly.

Politically, the effect of the demonstrations is a matter of conjecture.

Kishi told members of his party he would not bow to mob pressure and intended to remain in office until the U.S.-Japan security pact goes into effect. Ratified by the Diet's lower house last Friday, it allows American troops to stay in Japan at least 10 years more.

Kishi's Liberal-Democrat party managed to ram the treaty through the lower house and frustrate Socialist delaying tactics by extending the session 50 days beyond its normal expiration date, which would have been Thursday. The treaty goes into effect automatically on June 19 unless Parliament adjourns before then. The leftists are using the demonstrations to try to force the legislators to shut up shop and go home, thus voiding the treaty.

Death Toll In Chile May Reach 5,000

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The death toll for south Chile's 6-day-old siege of earthquakes, tidal waves, avalanches and volcanic eruptions may reach 5,000, government sources said Thursday. The devastating blows of natural violence that began last Saturday abated somewhat during the day.

Officially confirmed figures thus far show 2,829 dead and missing. But with scores of communities still cut off by nature's upheavals, officials said a final count cannot be made for weeks.

Some victims buried under masses of shifting terrain may never be found.

800 Indians

The Interior Ministry disclosed it was investing reports that more than 800 Araucana Indians lie buried under tons of snow, rock and other debris in quake-born avalanches.

The Araucanas—Chile's original inhabitants—live in scattered settlements high in the snow-covered southern mountains.

Amid the continuing disaster reports, hopes rose that the country's ordeal soon may be ending.

Only two new quakes were reported Wednesday night and early Thursday by the University of Chile Observatory, and both were mild.

The observatory said the seismic violence, already blamed for an estimated 300 million dollars of property damage, appeared to be on the wane.

Tremendous Damage

Eyewitness reports from the stricken cities of Puerto Montt, on the south-central Chilean coast, and Valdivia, about 30 miles to the north, pictured great devastation.

In Valdivia, a city of 100,000, water and food were at a premium, about 40 per cent of the business and residential areas were in ruins, and both power and communications were out.

Food and water also were desperately needed in Puerto Montt, a city of 45,000. Officials who made a check of conditions there reported much of the residential area destroyed.

Tocks Island Endorsed By Key Group

WASHINGTON—The National Congress of Rivers and Harbors last night endorsed the Tocks Island Dam and Reservoir and four other projects proposed for the Delaware River Basin.

The action means that the organization will approve the projects for submission to the United States Congress for authorization and appropriation of funds as soon as Corps of Engineers plans are final and definite.

Charles R. Bensinger, of Stroudsburg, chairman of the Water Resources Assn. for the Delaware River Basin, is attending the rivers and harbors group's annual meeting here as the representative of Congressman Francis E. Walter and of Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Pennsylvania secretary of forests and waters.

Besides the $96,000,000 Tocks Island dam, other projects approved by the group's project committee included Trexler Dam, near Easton; Prompton Dam, Honesdale; Beltzville Dam, near Reading, and Blue Marsh Dam, near Philadelphia.

Ike 'Welcomes' Spy Plane Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Over a hearty breakfast, President Eisenhower Thursday assured top Democratic and Republican congressional leaders he welcomes—and will cooperate fully with—a Senate inquiry into the spy plane episode and the summit crackup.

Reporting this, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen that "in turn, the entire group agreed that the inquiry should be conducted on a completely nonpartisan and truly bipartisan basis." Hagerty said Eisenhower pledged to consider "any recommendations such an inquiry might make."

Confirmed By Johnson

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas gave a like report after 10 senators, 13 House members and several Cabinet-level officials conferred with Eisenhower at a breakfast of oatmeal, scrambled eggs, ham and bacon.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois concurred and said Eisenhower made "a plea for unanimity of spirit and feeling."

All in all, the breakfast—billed in advance as a presidential briefing on the summit collapse—had earmarks of a friendship meeting.

It was a sharp turnabout from the increasingly bitter Democratic-Republican slugging of the past few days in which the terms "appeasement" and "soft on communism" were hurled back and forth.

Stop Accusing Other

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), whose Senate Foreign Relations Committee will open an avowedly nonpolitical inquiry, said Eisenhower agreed with him that both parties should stop accusing each other of being soft toward communism and "quit competing with each other" over which would be tougher with the Russians.

Hagerty, who sat in, described it as "one of the best meetings I have ever attended." He said the Democratic and Republican congressmen "were there as Americans and not as party members."

Spectacular Action By Russia Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter was described Thursday as anticipating "further spectacular action" by the Soviet Union in the next few months.

House Foreign Affairs committeemen, who talked with Herter in a closed-door session, said they do not believe the secretary meant the Russians would make a warlike or definitely hostile move.

It might be a scientific shocker like the first Sputnik, Chairman Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa) said.

Not Only Cause

After a 2½-hour session with the secretary, Morgan issued a summary which he said Herter had read and approved.

It quoted the secretary as saying he does not believe the incident of the downed spy plane was the sole cause of the breakdown of the summit conference.

The statement went on: "The secretary indicated that the behavior of the Soviet leaders since Paris may be interpreted either as a desire to avoid bringing on a war crisis or as psychological in order to pull the wool over the eyes prior to some new threatening act. He anticipates further spectacular action by the Russians in the months to come."

School Aid Approved; Segregation Barred

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Thursday night approved a $1,300,000,000 school construction bill containing an anti-segregation provision.

The roll call vote was 206-189.

The anti-segregation amendment, put into the bill by a 218-181 vote, could endanger the chances of Senate agreement to the measure.

Under the amendment, no money could go to schools that refuse to obey court integration orders.

Southern senators are unlikely to accept this provision. Their support would be needed in the usual House-Senate conference proceedings in such situations.

House approval of the bill came after an eight-hour session in which the legislation at one time seemed doomed.

Teacher Salaries

The Senate has passed a $1,800,000,000 bill which contains a controversial provision—not in the House measure—authorizing the states to use the money for teachers' salaries as well as for school construction.

Voting for the House bill on final passage were 162 Democrats and 44 Republicans. Against it were 97 Democrats and 92 Republicans.

Voting for the antisegregation, amendment which was sponsored by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY), were 100 Democrats and 118 Republicans. Against it were 160 Democrats and 21 Republicans.

The bill was in trouble all the way through the stormy session. At one point it was replaced by a substitute that would have used cigarette taxes to help finance school construction, but in a later roll-call vote the House discarded this approach.

325 Million

As finally approved the House bill authorizes 325 million dollars a year for four years, the money to be used solely for school construction.

The House added one year to the three-year program originally proposed. This was done in meeting an administration demand that the states match all federal money received.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. (D-NJ), author of the bill, proposed the extension and added a provision that local as well as state funds may be used for matching during the first two years. Only state funds would be used the final two years.

Another provision demanded by the administration—that funds be allocated on the basis of a state's needs—was rejected finally after being tentatively approved once.

The shifting of positions on the various votes taken during the battle prompted Thompson to accuse opponents of the bill of adopting "completely cynical" tactics in an effort to defeat it.

He told newsmen a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats was trying to "slam the door shut in the face of the nation's school children."

Vandals Grab Grave Flags

STROUDSBURG Police were notified last night by Frank Weller, Veterans Administration representative in Stroudsburg, of children taking the flags from the graves of veterans buried in the Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Parents are reminded of the state law dealing with the removal of articles from graves.

Stroudsburg Police are investigating the complaint.

Midas Devices Fail

WASHINGTON (AP)—Faulty instruments on the Midas satellite may prevent tests of its equipment designed to detect enemy ballistic missiles when they are fired, the Air Force said Thursday night.

Finch Trial Put Off

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carole Tregoff, the red-haired former model who put spice into Finch murder trial No. 1, wept Thursday when trial No. 2 was postponed until June 20.

Lodge Displays Red Spy Device

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge displayed to the Security Council Thursday a hand-covered wood eagle with a listening device hidden inside.

He said the Soviets had given it to the American ambassador in Moscow to hang in his office so they could eavesdrop on conversations. He offered it as "a concrete example of Soviet espionage."

Lodge said the United States had found well over a hundred concealed listening devices in "numerous embassies" in the Soviet Union and other such countries—25 in Poland—and the latest within the past month.

The Soviet delegation smiled as Lodge talked. Then Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko remarked that Lodge had shown the council "a picture." He asked what play it was out of and when the play would open.

Lodge came back: "It's not a picture. It's not a work of art. It's not out of any play. It's out of the Soviet Union."

Poland's Ambassador Jerzy Michalowski said he wouldn't try to answer Lodge, but could give some interesting information "concerning the microphones in some of our buildings in this country."

Lodge said the Soviets had given the "beautiful piece of carving" to the U.S. ambassador not long ago—and "then a clandestine listening device was discovered inside."

It looked like a solid piece, he explained, but turned out to be in two parts, front and back, joined by a transparent ring and hollow inside.

Lodge showed the council how it opened—and said, "here is the clandestine listening device with the aerial—right under the eagle's beak."

This, he asserted, would enable persons outside the embassy to listen to conversations in the ambassador's office.

Auto Plows Into Band; 13 Injured

MADAWASKA, Maine (AP)—An automobile hurtled through a high school band group that was massed for a parade Thursday, injuring 12 children and their band director.

The names of three youngsters are on the danger list at a hospital in adjacent Edmundston, N. B. Police said they were dragged beneath the car as it careened through a parking lot and plunged down an embankment.

The driver, George Pelletier, 62-year-old unemployed construction worker of Madawaska, was booked on a drunken-driving charge and released in $5,000 bail.

Claims Pedal Stuck

Patrolman Norman Alberts quoted Pelletier as saying the car's accelerator pedal stuck.

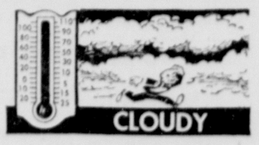

Maine's Gov. John H. Reed, here to dedicate a new customs building in this border town, was an eye witness.

He said:

"The parade (to the customs house) was all ready to go. The band had tuned up. I was in the lead car. I heard a crash like a car upsetting. I turned around and this car was going through the guard rail awfully fast. It's a miracle nobody was killed. Children were tossed into the air and all over the place. It (the car) plowed right through the band. It was terrible, one of the most tragic scenes I've ever witnessed."

The car sped out of a side street into the parking lot where the band was assembled.

Soviet Move To Rap U.S. Turned Down

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrei Gromyko charged Thursday night President Eisenhower has made clear the United States will continue acts of espionage and sabotage against the Soviet Union. He said this policy puts the world on the brink of a nuclear war.

The Soviet Foreign minister unleashed a scathing attack on Eisenhower and U.S. policy in the Security Council, where earlier the Soviet Union met overwhelming defeat in an attempt to have the United States branded an aggressor for spy flights over Russian territory.

Want Talks Resumed

Gromyko spoke as the council considered a four-power resolution calling on the Big Four to resume negotiations on outstanding issues with the help of the United Nations.

He termed the resolution "toothless and pointless" and submitted a series of amendments, among them one declaring violation of air space a threat to world peace.

Gromyko said of Wednesday night's address by President Eisenhower on the collapse of the summit conference:

"This statement expresses with particular clarity the imperialistic foreign policy line of the United States, a line aimed at exacerbating the international situation.

"This found its expression above all in the demonstrative announcement to the whole world that the United States government intended to continue the policy of military espionage and sabotage against the Soviet Union, a policy of dangerous provocations which, indeed, place mankind on the brink of war."

Regrets Not Enough

He said Eisenhower only expressed regret that spy flights by U2 planes had failed.

"He did, however, add forthwith that owing to this failure the United States government would utilize other, and apparently in his understanding, more perfect methods," Gromyko continued.

Gromyko said that because the United States bears the responsibility for wrecking the summit conference the appeal for resumption of Big Four negotiations should be sent directly to the White House.

Gromyko spoke after U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said the United States would vote for the four-power resolution.

The overwhelming vote against condemnation of the United States came after Lodge dramatically displayed in the Council a hand-carved wooden eagle with a listening device hidden in it. He said it was a gift from the Russians to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, obviously designed to let the Russians eavesdrop on embassy conversations.

Won't Bar Flights

In what amounted to a resounding vote of confidence in the United States, the Council rejected a Soviet resolution seeking both condemnation and a Council embargo on any future spy flights.

The vote was 2 in favor, 7 against and 2 abstaining. Only the Soviet Union and Communist Poland cast affirmative votes. Lining up with the United States were Britain, France, Italy, Nationalist China, Ecuador and Argentina. The abstainers were Ceylon and Tunisia.

After disposing of the Soviet complaint, the council went on to consider a resolution urging a renewal of Big Four negotiations on outstanding issues with the aid of the United Nations.

This was an obvious attempt to wind up the debate on a conciliatory tone after the sharp exchange between Lodge and Gromyko.

Gromyko said after the vote he would bring up the question again in the U.N. General Assembly, but that he did not wish to say now whether it would be at a regular or special session.

Most diplomats felt it would be at the session opening Sept. 20 when the United States plans to bring in its plan for aerial reconnaissance under the supervision of the Security Council."

Highway Secretary Martin's Opinion:

It'll Take At Least 10 To 12 Years To Finish Shortway

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Keystone Shortway has gotten a good break so far, State Highways Secretary Park H. Martin said Thursday, but it still will take at least 10 or 12 years to complete construction.

"It can't be built any quicker," Martin said.

No Fair-Haired Boy

"We can't just make a fair-haired boy out of one road,' he explained. "We have to spread the available money over the Anthracite Expressway, the Erie-to-Pittsburgh Freeway and other interstate projects."

The east-west superhighway, which will extend some 306 miles between Sharon and Stroudsburg, is part of the federal interstate system. Ninety per cent of the estimated 300-million-dollar bill will be paid by the federal government and the other 10 cent by the state.

Martin said the completion date will depend on how much money the state gets from the interstate program. He pointed out that Pennsylvania's share last year was cut from some 101 millions to 71 millions.

The department is giving higher priority to the sections of the shortway that will get the most use.

In order to speed connection of the various sections, Martin said, the department is considering building the shortway as a two-lane road in some areas where the amount of traffic does not demand four lanes. The other two lanes would be added later.

16 Depressed Areas

C. E. Noyes, executive director of the Keystone Shortway Assn., said the road was needed in a hurry and the association would not be satisfied until it is completed.

Noyes said that 16 of the state's 22 depressed areas will be served by the shortway and the route will be a great economic benefit.

"The sooner it can be done," he said, "the better the entire state will be."

The department said contracts may be awarded later this year for part of the shortway between White Deer, in Union County, and Berwick.

Contracts for final designs also may be let within the year for the western section from Sharon to near the Clarion-Jefferson County line.

Progress on planning and construction divides the route into 11 sections. The department gave this breakdown on the progress by sections, from east to west:

1. The first section of the Stroudsburg Bypass, 3.2 miles, was completed this year at a cost of $5,164,309.

2. The second bypass section, 3.07 miles, is under construction. It will cost $3,765,539.

Final Design

3. Final designs are being prepared on the section west to Crescent Lake. (This section will serve both the Shortway and the Penn-Can Highway.)

4. Final designs also are being prepared on the section between Crescent Lake and U. S. 309, north of Hazleton.

5. The section between U. S. 309 and Mifflinville still is under the preliminary engineering stage due to obstacles in establishing a route over Nescopeck Mountain. A solution is expected soon.

6. From Mifflinville to White Deer, on the west shore of the Susquehanna River, the Shortway is under final design.

7. A location report on the section from White Deer and to near Clearfield is being considered by the department and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

8. Aerial mapping is being done on the section from near Clearfield to Emerickville as part of the preliminary engineering.

9. Final designs are being prepared from Emerickville to Brookville.

10. The section from Brookville to U. S. 322 just across the Clarion County line is under construction. It will cost $3,154,078.

11. Preliminary engineering is nearing completion on the section from near the Clearfield County line to the Ohio State Line.

Good Morning!

Spending time is better than killing it; investing time is better still.

Barrett 'Y' Board Hears Report

BARRETT—The annual meeting of the Board of Managers of the Barrett Branch YMCA was held recently at Onawa Lodge. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Karl Weiler, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Miller, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reinhardt, Rev. and Mrs. John Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenny Crothers, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Price, Mr. and Mrs. William Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rapha Sieg, Mrs. John Henry, Mrs. Russell Brush, Mrs. Lena Swaine, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wilson.

The meeting was opened by the president, Karl Weiler, who welcomed all the guests. The Invocation was given by Rev. John Carter. Robert Wilson, director of the Barrett Branch, gave a brief resume of the program that had been followed during the past year.

Among the regular programs were basketball teams for the Junior and Senior boys. Both groups played in basketball leagues at the Stroudsburg Y during the year. A softball team for the younger boys was formed during the warm weather last year and has again started this spring.

The men's volleyball team also participated in a league this past winter plus their regular Monday evening sessions.

Saturday Movies

Saturday afternoon movies were well attended this past winter. Popcorn and soft drinks were sold by the younger boys of the Y at each performance.

Sewing classes were also conducted again this year by Mrs. Naomi Reisenwitz for the women, and the women also had the opportunity of going to the Stroudsburg Y for a Slimnastic and Swim class.

The Junior and Senior Tri-Hi-Y's were very active. The Jr. group held hayrides, overnight hikes, swimming at the Stroudsburg Y pool, a semi-formal Valentine's Dance at which a King and Queen were crowned, and send various gifts and cards to a shut-in.

The Senior group also had various social activitels and also gave a Thanksgiving basket to a deserving family, sponsored the Barrett Pre-School Center Easter party, and held a bake sale for the purpose of earning enough money to repaint the interior of the Barrett Y, which they did.

Ballet classes were held under the leadership of Karen Kemple Roth with the baton group participating in the Minstrel Show held by the Stroudsburg YMCA at Buck Hill.

Boxing classes were held once a week under the leadership of Wayne Howell.

Dances Popular

Friday night dances for the 12 to 14 year old group of boys and girls were very popular. The Saturday night dances for the older group were also very successful with the highlight of the year being a semi-formal Christmas Dance held at Convention Lodge at Buck Hill.

A cafeteria was opened up for the Saturday night dances manned by parents of the teenagers. A new juke box was also purchased for the Y from the Shinnen Memorial Fund and has been put in consatnt use.

Among the special events was a ping-pong tournament held during the Christmas vacation. The awards for this event were given out at the annual Father and Son Banquet held in February at which time Dr. Peter Emmons spoke.

Also held this year was a Mother and Daughter Banquet at Laurel Grove the day before Mothre's Day. An Auction Sale was held last year and plans are already being made to hold another Auction Sale this year on Friday, August 26.

It was also mentioned that the YMCA Membership Campaign was a success with the Barrett Branch reaching their quota.

Wilson also reported that the Y is serving the community in many other ways through Cub programs, Scouting, special community meetings, the Pre-School Center, and Church groups. He said that there is still a lot to be done and it will be done during the coming months.

The youth of our community are behind the "Y" and want to help with all YMCA projects. He also mentioned that the Board of Managers should feel proud to be behind a group that is expanding and who will continue to expand in order to meet the needs of the community.

To Serve Again

E. Kenny Crothers announced that Weiler had consented to again be Chairman of the Board for the coming year, and that Miller will again be vice-president.

Weiler introduced John R. Wilson, General Secretary of the Monroe County YMCA, who made several remarks on the success of the programs run during the past year. He especially mentioned the oil painting classes conducted by Mrs. Edna Palmer Engelhardt for the benefit of the Barrett Branch Y.

Warren Miller gave the Benediction and Weiler closed the meeting.

Community Chorus Set For Production

By John Price

POCONO Community Chorus is scheduled to do another of musical type shows in Scranton on July 8. The production, to be staged at the Masonic Temple, will be similar to and have some of the musical parts which made up the chorus' success of last November, "Front Row Center."

Rehearsals have been going on at the organization's rehearsal hall in the Waring Building, Washington St., East Stroudsburg. Members,40 in all, meet every Monday night.

The chorus is in a constant change of composition, so much so, that only one of the present members, Mrs. Marjorie Barnes, was in the original group.

The Stroudsburg Community Chorus (its first name) was organized in March of 1948. Its first public performance was the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, the "Pirates of Penzance," staged at Stroudsburg High School.

Robert Lang was the first director. He was a member of the Waring Organization. The Chorus was made up of men from Stroudsburg Male Chorus, the Pocono Male Chorus and other local people. Lew Tyreman was its first president.

In 1949 the late Bob Hilton took over directorship of the group. It continued under Hilton, doing such favorites as Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," several Gilbert and Sullivans, club concerts and sacred music until his death in 1951. The "Mikado" was that best liked by both the chorus and the public. It was in rehearsal for "HMS Pinafore" when Hilton died of a heart attack.

Dr. Earl Willhoite took over the direction of the chorus. It was during his tern, as leader that the name was changed to the Pocono Community Chorus. Dr. Willhoite led the Chorus in such shows as "Song of Easter" (1952), "Down in the Valley" ('53), a benefit for the Monroe County, General Hospital Auxilliary, the "Emperor's New Clothes" ('54), "Our American Heritage" ('55) and "Brigadoon" ('56). This last was the Chorus' largest production. Dr. Willhoite is now director of Shawnee Choir.

Mrs. Norma Treible, Birch Acres, is the present director of PCC. She assumed the leadership in May 1957. Mrs. Treible is also the director of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church Choir; she plays both the piano and organ, and teaches piano.

The first performance to be directed by Mrs. Treible was "Musicana" in 1957. She has led the members in church concerts on the Mountains as well as in the Stroudsburgs. Service club concerts have taken them as far as Easton. The biggest undertaking with Mrs. Treible at the helm was "Front Row Center" ('59). The show starred a young man by the name of Tom Waring.

The gowns worn by the Chorus are a bright red with gray stoles. Just as there is change in chorus personnel there is also change in clothes. They are in the process of getting white jackets, black trousers and cumerbunds for the men, and evening dresses, all in the same style but in three different shades of pink for the ladies. When costumes are needed they are supplied by Mrs. Marcia DeRocco of Bushkill and Mrs. John E. Gregory, Stroudsburg. Others are rented from a firm in Philadelphia.

Seven tenors, seven bases, one baritone-base, 14 sopranos and nine altos blend their voices, sometimes diminuendo, sometimes crashing cresendo, but always pleasing to the ear.

Ann Meredith Serfass is accompanist for the Pocono Community Chorus. John Lazo is president.

Usually the Chorus does not rehearse during the summer months, but this year due to the number of bookings, it must continue. All concerts are benefit performances.

Little Gap Residents Protest

RESIDENCES of the Little Gap area, Carbon County, protested the building of a dam in that area to representatives of the U. S. Army Engineers and the Department of Forest and Waters.

The owners feel that they will not get a "fair price" for their property and with the announcement of the proposed dam the value of their property has dropped.

For several of the families it will mean spending their life savings to re-locate in a new home or farm, they noted.

One of 11

The proposed dam is one of 11 to be constructed in the Delaware River Basin. This one will be located near the village of Little Gap and will impound the waters of the Aquashicola and Buckhwa Creeks.

It is estimated that during the next 50 years the population and employment in the area to be serviced by the 11 projects will be more than doubled.

Don't Become A Memory

"Don't become a memory during the Memorial Day holiday weekend . . . drive carefully."

Such is the appropriate warning the newspapers throughout Pennsylvania are trying to impress upon their readers this week in advance of the season's first holiday weekend.

The Governor's Traffic Safety Committee and The Daily Record share a vital concern for your safety on the highways Memorial Day . . . and every day.

Unfortunately, holiday weekends have become infamous for the terrible toll of death, injury and destruction they have wrought throughout the years.

For many, these holidays have become "backyard weekends."

But for many others, the Memorial Day weekend will be an opportunity for a fun-filled holiday in the mountains or on the beach. This will mean heavy traffic and increased driving hazards.

There is, however, a bright side to this problem of traffic safety during the holidays. Motorists have demonstrated that the toll need not be great. During the Easter holidays, for example, deaths were reduced from 31 in 1959 to six this year.

A year ago, Memorial Day traffic mishaps claimed 13 lives. This compared with 17 fatalities during the 1958 Memorial Day holidays.

Full credit for improved traffic safety belongs to drivers.

If you are planning a holiday trip, please drive with care, courtesy and caution. These three "C's" will help make your trip a roundtrip.

That Magic Hinge

A company in Detroit has developed a sort of "magic hinge" said to be able to correct errors in a golfer's driving form.

The Private Pro Co. says that the hinge "breaks" when a man makes a faulty drive. But when a man makes a good, straight drive, the hinge remains hinged.

Because of the hinge, a golfer simply has to practice enough to hit the ball right down the middle or he'll never get off the first tee with the thing. The "magic hinge" will help correct both hooking and slicing drives.

Well, man has sought to use magic to do the things he can't do ever since the days of the philospoher's stone. And doubtless this bit of mechanical voodoo will help some golfers.

As for us, we'd not be happy if we did everything right on the golf links. As for the magic hinge, we'd be very unhappy with a club that seems to come apart every time we hit the ball wrong.

What we need is a club that will do something spectacular, like canned TV applause, when we hit the ball right.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Six Or Eight Months

Six months from Khrushchev's threats will be November; eight months therefrom will be January. Khrushchev believes that in six or eight months he might be able to hold another Summit Meeting with an American President to his liking.

Six months from Krushchev's talkfest will be November when the Presidential election will be held; eight months marks the Presidential Inauguration.

In a word, the dates set by the Russian are Election Day and the Inauguration. He must have looked at his calendar and shouted, "Bog, I've got it!"

And Adlai Stevenson picked up the cue and issued an attack on Eisenhower. What is national unity in an election year! Senator Lyndon Johnson, wiser in the ways of the American people, made no sounds similar to those of Adlai Stevenson.

In a struggle for survival, there is little time for party divisions. There are still many in this country who do not grasp what happened in Paris.

The reason is that they do not recognize the President of the United States as a symbol of the entire American people and also of each individual citizen when he faces a foreign country.

Politics goes to the water's edge and beyond its representation. This does not mean that errors should not be criticized and faults found in the proper place, at the proper time.

In this instance, a man stood before the world and in language befitting a guttersnipe, toned down in translation, vilified the President of the United States and our country. It does not matter who the President is, or what his name is, or what party he belongs to.

At that moment, all decent Americans stand shoulder to shoulder.

At that moment there can be no thought of such small matters as private safety or political advancement: it is the symbol of our nationality that has been assaulted. Gromyko, in his United Nations speech, emphasized national sovereignty. Are we a lesser people?

If Nikita Khrushchev continues to display his hatred for Richard Nixon, he will elect him the next President. Is it hatred for Nixon or is it fear of him? Khrushchev has probably met all the candidates now available.

The one he has set out to defeat is Nixon. Does he believe that the American people will vote for or against a candidate to please him? Does he think that he can, by fiat, select the next president of the United States? Would he permit President Eisenhower to select the next premier of Soviet Russia?

He might choose the Armenian, Mikoyan, or the Stalinist, Malenkov. Certainly no decent American would ever want to break bread with Khrushchev or sit at a conference with him. His vulgarity is too boorish. Does he believe that he can choose a President who will dine with HIM?

Some say: Do you prefer war? It is like asking: Do you prefer cancer? The answer is, of course, that no one wants war, disease, evils, murrains, earthquakes, poverty, the death of one's children.

But realistically these events do occur. And philosophically, it becomes necessary to ask something about dignity and honor. Surely, no one in ancient Greece wanted to be a slave, but those became slaves who were seized in conquest.

Surely, Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia did not want to be pushed out of a window nor did he wish to commit suicide — whichever it was, it occurred and his country went into bondage. Cardinal Mindszenty had no ambition to become a martyr for his church and his country but that became his fate when he chose not to bend his knee to an atheistic conqueror.

Men must make choices. It is possible to say in this year of direful history that those nations which do not accept Soviet dictation will suffer distress during the next decade.

It will be asked, "Shall we make another war over Germany? "Shall we fight over Berlin?" These are really silly questions to one who has studied the Leninist theory of Russia's destiny. What Khrushchev said in Paris, Marx wrote before him; Lenin wrote before Khrushchev existed.

The next stage in the social and political development of man, they hold, is the Communist state — universal, without nationality, without religion, without racial differences, even with government withered away. And until that day, the world must be held in tutelage by the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Answers Dr. Martucci

Mr. John Hill, Editor
Daily Record Office

Dear Mr. Hill:

Please accept this letter in rebuttal to the article inserted in The Daily Record by Dr. John Martucci of Brodheadsville.

Writing on behalf of an interested group, we do not, and never have questioned the veracity of the good doctor, but we do question, and justly so, his personal appraisal concerning the re-location of a Pennsylvania State Police Station in Brodheadsville.

We agree that the area is a growing community; so are many, many others in this fine state of which Blakeslee and Fern Ridge are a part. Surely, Doctor, a growing community will need officers of the law eventually.

Let's not be difficult — why not grow up with the needs of the community? Let's grow with our community; think and plan for the future. It is almost certain that your area has within its boundaries several fine young men who would bring credit to your community by serving as peace officers.

You made mention that a station would be a deterrent. (We wonder). Several years ago a bank messenger was held up and robbed of thousands of dollars on Main Street in Stroudsburg, just one block from the state Police Barracks.

To cite another example, the Mt. Pocono Fire House was burglarized several doors from the Mt. Pocono Barracks.

Now, as to the location! Do you, or did you ever give any thought or consideration to the problem that would result if the station would be relocated in Brodheadsville?

Your nearest State Police Station north would be Wyoming, Pa., a distance of some forty-five miles; Mt. Pocono, twenty miles, and Hazleton, forty-five miles. You should consider yourself fortunate in having the services of the State Police in Stroudsburg only twelve miles east of the heart of Brodheadsville.

Your community is growing, and that holds true with ours. Who knows what the future holds in store for we isolationists, as you infer.

We shall have the Keystone Shortway, the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the Bear Creek Dam and the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools which, by the way, are more than twice the size of the Pleasant Valley Joint Schools and, therefore, warrants twice the protection.

We on the mountain are far more interested in protecting the lives of our school children and adults than mere material values such as dollars and cents.

Atty. Joseph McCluskey is ready for hire as a capturer of bees.

McCluskey, of Stroudsburg, got his indoctrination in the stinging business last Sunday when a swarm entered the living room of his home.

The ultimate results showed the counsellor portraying a Frank Buck and Clyde Beatty role to the best advantage.

McCluskey was so much the hero that he lives to tell the tale.

Mickey Stevens, the old football star of Stroudsburg High and Muhlenberg, is planting flowers these days.

Stevens is considered an expert in the horticultural field by his South Stroudsburg neighbors.

However, the husky gent with the ever present smile, refuses to name the types he's putting or has put earthward.

Les Voss, Mr. Eagle of our territory, is readying for another trip to the national convention of the birds.

Voss, the banker from Barrett who places his hat in Stroudsburg, has been making the annual trek to Eagle conventions for years.

Of course, Les will have to take "mommy" along.

George Speers and Alvin Clapper tried to pull a fast one on Woolworth heir "Nip" Nevil the other night at the Varsity "S" banquet.

The two Stroudsburg personalities attempted to have the chairman of the "S" fete paged at the Penn Stroud. But wisened up Nevil got wind of the dastardly deed and shied away from such a call from the wild.

The trio are best of friends even if they have to go all the way to Baltimore to prove it.

The Pennsylvania Story

Lost In Shuffle

By Mason Denisor

Harrisburg — When Pennsylvania's top Republican brass gathered in Philadelphia over the past weekend for their biennial reorganization meeting of the Republican State Committee there was the usual speech-making by the politico big-wigs of the party and the conventional back-slapping of the old pros who use the occasion as a stock booster.

However, lost in the shuffle and yet seemingly one of the most significant offerings was that by State Treasurer Robert F. Kent (GOP candidate for State Auditor General this Fall) who in a short speech near the end of the program had this to say:

"I warn you, that if we lose this year the greater majority of us here today will not live to see a Republican administration in Harrisburg. Therefore this year we are fighting for our lives."

Curiously, it is this very theme that has been hammered repeatedly in this column in the past . . . What does it take to wake up Republicans too engrossed in personal back-slapping to gaze outside their cracked and already well shattered window?

Upcoming Legislative Contrasts — For Pennsylvania taxpayers and voters wondering what sort of record the current 1960 legislative session might establish when it recon- less than a fortnight hence (June 6) following a four-month recess, the answer should be simple . . . It will be virtually zero, on a comparative basis at least.

Stacked against this year's session for example will be the record of the 1959 session — second longest in the history of the state when a record total of 791 new laws were enacted and signed into law.

Governor Lawrence not only signed more bills into law during the 1959 session than any other chief executive but he vetoed fewer bills . . . His 23 vetoes was a record low.

The current 1960 session ultimately may wind up with a score or so bills for the Governor to sign and will peter out this Fall, at the latest, following a record for recessing.

Committee On Committees — The Lawrence Administration most certainly will go down in the history books as one noted for "committees" — especially those "advisory" committees involving appointments from all walks of life.

Such study committees of course are viewed as excellent "outs" on controversial subjects — the answer always can be (when a negative reaction sets in): "well, that's what the committee recommended — not me."

Latest committee brainchild announced by the Governor is the "Technical Advisory Committee on Data Processing Evaluation" — apparently designed to evaluate data of departments of state government, for whatever that may be worth.

It was generally assumed that when the state spent more than $300,000 a few years ago for "Univac" — the data processing monster and marvel — it was known at that time the data it could handle, which was the reason for the electronic giant in the first place . . . The new committee is made up of 14 representatives from private industry — but that isn't all.

There is also a "Departmental Advisory Committee" on the subject made up of representatives of nine of the larger state agencies on Capitol Hill!

Up Periscope! — The Governor's much talked about highway safety program unquestionably is getting off to a well fed start . . . At the big highway safety conference last month, those persons from all over the state invited to atend apparently did not go away hungry.

The tab for their lunch: $4400, according to a bill for the affair submitted by the caterer and now being processed by the State Auditor General's Department.

General taxpayers of the state need not be concerned however . . . The tab is being picked up by highway users only - it is being charged against the State Motor Fund, which by legislative decree can be used only for highway program purposes!

The Allen-Scott Report

Nixon's V. P. Choices

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Vice President Nixon's personal list of possible running mates is headed by three top officials, in the following order:

(1) Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, 58, former Massachusette senator, and a world figure as a result of being U.S. representative at the UN since 1953.

(2) Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson, 50, Texas born a educated, former law professor at the University of Texas, and credited by Administration authorities as the most influential cabinet member on domestic affairs in President Eisenhower's councils.

(3) Senator Thruston Morton, 53-year-old Kentuckian, who is also Republican National Chairman. Prior to his 1956 election to the Senate, Morton served two terms in the House of Representatives, and was Assistant Secretary of State for three years.

That is the inside word former National Chairman Leonard Hall is giving party leaders throughout the country.

Since early last fall, the New Yorker has been devoting full time to quietly masterminding Nixon's campaign for the GOP presidential nomination. Hall is functioning from an "unlisted" headquarters (Room 811-H) in Washington's Sheraton Park Hotel.

In 1958, Hall sought the New York gubernatorial nomination, but lost out to Nelson Rockefeller. Last year, when Rockefeller launched a drive for the presidency, Hall played a leading backstage role in blocking him.

Hall is telling friends he has "positive assurances" he will manage Nixon's election campaign irrespective of who may be National Chairman in the fall.

Why They're Favorites — Distinct personal and geoghaphic factors are the primary reasons Lodge, Anderson and Morton are the leading prospects as Vice President Nixon's running mate.

As expounded by Hall, these individual qualifications are:

Ambassador Lodge — With foreign affairs, particularly future dealings with Russia, certain to be uppermost in the race for the White House, Lodge's extensive experience and prominence in this field make him the top choice for second place on the Republican ticket. Also weighing importantly in his favor is that he is an Easterner, thus teaming well with Nixon from California.

Further strongly swaying him toward Lodge was his refusal to join Rockefeller's abortive try for the presidency. Vigorous efforts were made to get Lodge to do that, but he insisted on being "neutral." In effect, that amounted to rebuffing Rockefeller, but without antagonizing him.

As a result, Lodge is now deemed to be in a good position to "act as the bridge" between partisans of the New York Governor and Nixon.

Secret Anderson — Being a Texan and an Eisenhower Democrat is largely the reason for his leading position as a vice presidential possibility. His presence on Nixon's ticket, it is felt, would count materially in winning Southern votes generally, and in Texas and Florida particularly. Also operating potently in Anderson's favor is the fact he is so highly regarded by the President, and by businessmen, who especially approve his militant advocacy of economy and a balanced budget.

Senator Morton — The combination of coming from a strategic border state and having experience both in Congress and the State Department makes him the third choice on Nixon's private running mate list. Morton also is considered a "terrific campaigner," and a National Chairman who gets along amicably with all elements of the party.

If Morton does not get the vice presidential nomination, he will continue as National Chairman. Hall is saying the Kentuckian has been given that word by Nixon.

In Hall's talks with GOP leaders, he is stressing three views held by Nixon on the basis of a series of polls:

(1) The South is now "40 percent Republican," and Nixon firmly believes he will run as strongly there as Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956.

(2) The political situation in the Middle West is "generally adverse, due largely to hostility to Benson." However, Nixon is confident that with strenuous campaigning he can win in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska and Iowa.

(3) "Most voters" view Nixon as the "best qualified" to deal with Premier Khrushchev. Nixon's polls give him a two to one edge on that over Senator John Kennedy, his closest Democratic runner-up.

This last factor is deemed of utmost importance since the collapse of the summit conference and Khrushchev's violent blast at the U.S.

Politicals—Reports of excessive spending by Senator John Kennedy in West Virginia are being received by Vice President Nixon. That's what his press assistant, Herbert Klein, is telling reporters. According to Klein, Governor Cecil Underwood is investigating these charges. Reports also are current that several big newspapers have sent reporters to West Virginia to look into these big-spending allegations. According to two other accounts, a grand jury already is probing them, and petitions are being circulated in Logan County "for fed-Rex Bell, one-time mivie star, eral surveillance of the election in November." . . . Nevada's Republican Lieutenant Governor was rebuffed at the GOP state convention on his choice for National Committeeman. Although Bell was the only Republican to win important state office in Nevada in 1958, the party leaders disregarded him in the state convention.

On Broadway —by Walter Winchell

Allen Dulles must be pondering the ironies of history this week. General George Washington sent in a spy once, a fellow named Nathan Hale, who got himself caught and was hanged as a result . . . The general reaction of the Americans is reflected in a couple of monuments to both Washington and Hale . . . The cheap appeasers now hollering for Allen Dulles' scalp want to reverse the process . . . If their logic is correct, they should be demanding that the statues of Washington and Hale be removed on the ground that all the foreign diplomats now at the United Nations might get the idea that this country approves of George Washington and his methods.

In one sense, George Washington had it comparatively easy: No one suggested that he should be pilloried because one of his people got caught. The fact is, in spite of the politicians, that most Americans stay along with the old idea: Allen Dulles deserves a plaque, if not a monument, for going 90,000 feet high and 7,000 miles out of his way just to be sure about what our little playmates over the fence might be cooking up.

The same fuss and feathers were raised in 1928 when it was discovered that the State Dept. had a code-breaking Black Chamber . . . A lot of childish people protested the opening of other nations' secrets, as if they weren't opening ours . . . So for a long time the U. S. simply didn't know what was going on . . . When we had the code-breaking we knew we could limit the Jap fleet. How many American lives that saved is impossible to estimate, but it saved many . . . If peeking over the fence is illegal, why shouldn't we completely suspend our other activities? After all, all we were able to do because of intelligence was win the battle of Midway and defeat Rommel in Africa.

President George Washington also had an interesting answer when the House of Representatives asked to see his correspondence in the John Jay Treaties. His interesting answer was that it was none of their business . . . After thinking it over, a vice not particularly prevalent among Congressmen, they decided he was right . . . So while Allen Dulles cant' expect, like Washington and Hale, to get a monument out of this, he most certainly can and should point out to Congress the beauties of the Potomac River and tell the more inquisitive ones to go jump in it.

He could do no greater harm to this country than by yielding any information whatsoever on our intelligence system. Millions of people behind the Iron Curtain are willing to take their lives in their hands to help us . . . To expose how they work and who they are is to issue a death warrant against them. Even the possibility of exposure is enough to paralyze the passage of invaluable information to our country . . . The suggestion that it be openly debated is preposterous. If the Administration furnishes even the slightest clues to the identity and methods of operation, it will not only have violated civilized law; it will have done what even the worst gangster will not do; Put a friend on a spot.

What puzzles many people is the question: How good is a handshake? . . . The Democratic leaders went out to the airport to shake the President's hand, assuring him of their support, and before the applause had died, teed off on him. . . . Adlai Stevenson, at —of all things—a fund-raising rally, took the lead in the assault. The outrage is not free from an inference that the next $100 a plate Democratic dinner will be a sellout, at the expense of national unity.

In one of the most hilarious ads in American history a committee for Stevenson took full pages in Metropolitan newspapers to advance the candidacy of the former Illinois Governor. All were solemnly assured that Gov. Stevenson hadn't the slightest knowledge that they were doing this, surprise, surprise. . . . It is time Adlai Stevenson quit kidding himself that he is kidding the American public. . . . No man can sneak into the Presidency. If he wants the job, he should stand up and say so. If he doesn't—and he says he doesn't—he need merely point to General Sherman's statement, adopt it as his own, and the undignified pseudo-draft will be over. . . . At this time he is an embarrassment to the nation and a millstone around his own party's neck. There is no public service he could render which could possibly match an apology by him to the President and the American people, followed by a sour-grape declaration that he would not accept a nomination, nor would he serve if elected. . . . Millions now living and tens of millions yet unborn would carefully respect his well-earned oblivion.

Senator Fulbright, as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, would do well to suspend public exhibition of his ignorance of the law. An exercise in Faubustry is about all the Kremlin needs these days to refuel its propaganda gas tanks. . . . Sen. Fulbright's disastrous "friendly" investigation of the Stock Market should be reminder enough to him that his delicate touch often results in a monkey-wrench in the machinery.

Termed a collective portrait of a generation in deadlock, the article was written by Saul Pett and Hugh Mulligan, AP Newsfeatures writers.

Referring to Ottaway, the story says:

"Commitment has been a big word on the campus mostly because of challenge and the parade of commencement speakers and viewers-of-the-younger-generation-with-alarm who in recent years have been exhorting the young to avoid apathy and seek involvement with a cause. All of them failed to impress the biggest man on the campus, Jim Ottaway, outgoing chairman of the Yale Daily News, the top prestige job at Yale these days.

Goes To Endicott

"After graduation, Jim goes back to Endicott, N. Y., to help his father run a chain of newspapers. Soon he will have to start picking sides in the world. At Yale, he didn't.

He wrote editorials against picketing Woolworth's and the whole challenge idea of commitment. Why?

"Mainly because quite a few people use commitment as a substitute for thoughtful discussion. Their argument is that you can't sit around and think all your life. But my answer is that you have four years in which to learn and study before you must commit ourself."

The ...le is accompanied by a picture of Ottaway and his wife Mary, a graduate of Vassar.

Silence

More eloquent than any words is the silence of the 1960 Cadillac in motion. Eloquent, too, is the delighted look of the man who has just driven one for the first time. It says so unmistakably, "Never before, a car to compare with this!" It is a literal fact that you must concentrate to detect the sound of a 1960 Cadillac—except, of course, for the gentle whisper of the wind and the soft hum of the tires on the pavement. Your authorized Cadillac dealer invites you to try this unique driving experience.

Dear Abby

Try A Little Understanding

Dear Abby: We have an intolerable situation at our house and I'm heading for a nervous breakdown if it isn't solved soon.

Our little boy, 3, is our bloblem. For several months he has been getting up three and four times a night after being tucked in bed. He cries and comes to where we are and we have to put him in bed again. I think if a child is not ill he should go to sleep after a story and goodnight kiss.

I say he should be spanked, but my husband feels sorry for him and won't discipline him. This is making a wreck out of me. How can I make my husband see how wrong he is?

Dear Mother: Your husband isn't wrong—you are. The child comes to you because he needs the feeling of security. He just wants to know that you are there in case he needs you. Don't punish him. Give him the love he is asking for and in a short time he'll sleep soundly through the night.

Dear Abby: I am a single man and have been since my divorce in 1953. I have been keeping company with a woman who is also divorced. She says she loves me, but she continues to be very palsy walsy with all her ex-husband's clan. This has caused several arguments between us. (By the way, there is no excuse for her seeing them because she and her "ex" had no children.) To top it off, according to some of the stories this woman told me (some months back) this whole kit and kaboodle belongs in jail. I told her to choose between all her ex-relatives and me. She said she would like to keep their friendship and mine, too. What should I do?

MAC

Dear Mac: The woman obviously has two faces. And a man who would put up with her obviously has two heads. Turn tail—and run!

Dear Abby: If there is a worse mess in all this world, I wish you would point it out to me so I can feel better. I was a widow with a 10-year-old daughter when I met Mr. X, who was as fast a talker as ever I heard. Before I knew it I was married to him. I kept working and all I ever got out of my marriage was a "Mrs." in front of my name.

My daughter is now 16. Well, this no good bum of a husband came to me and asked for a divorce so he could marry my daughter and hide the shame he brought on her. She is all for it. She is his legally adopted daughter, too. Some say to throw them both out. Others say to have him arrested. What should I do? I have no money for lawyers.

BIG MESS

Dear Mess: Consult your Family Service Association and get loc l legal aid, which you certainly need. If you have no influence over your daughter, perhaps a social worker or clergyman could convince her that marriage to her step-father, under any circumstances, would be disastrous.

Confidential To "Mrs. Forget Me Not": If your religion permits it, visit your Planned Parenthood Center. They will give you full instructions on how to control the size of your family. The advice is free.

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-agers Want To Know," sen 25c and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Just Between Us——

—By Bobby Westbrook

There is nothing inherently funny about mumps, measles, chicken pox or whooping cough and the results, when adults contract some of these childhood diseases, are often anything but funny.

But everybody always laughs, anyway. Partly because of the incongruity of adult dignity and undignified symtoms; partly because the victim is always so sheepish about it all.

Which is the way I feel at the moment. My vaccination took! I've forgotten how many times they didn't "take" but nobody forgets his first vaccination, marking his readiness for school, separating him from the babies. Besides, when most of us were young, either the serum was more virulent, the method more drastic, or we were more impressed by the first instance of deliberate mutilation.

Anyway, there used to be a big to-do about vaccinations, which came comp'ete with little isinglass [illegible] taped over the [illegible]. But despite the [illegible], or maybe because of them, sometime in the course of "taking," the scab would be knocked off and then what tears and recriminations!

How clearly it all comes back, especially now as I duck away from a clap on the shoulder with an involuntary "Watch my vaccination!"

Even the doctor's way of pursuading reluctant children to have it done at all: "I'm just going to draw a little bird on your arm."

Sheepish I may feel about as long as that "little bird" is perching on my arm, but oddly exhilarated, too, as if, by virtue of having our vaccinations "take," the kindergartners and I still have something in common.

Presbyterian Aux. Inspects New Kitchen

Rosenkrans and Mrs. Francis Seely, the committee appointed to represent the Auxiliary at the recent Presbyterial reported on their impressions from that meeting and the subject Adult Christian Education. The Wyckoff Shopper
"the friendly store" A.B. Wyckoff Stroudsburg, Pa.

Very few of us, I imagine, actually achieve the dreams of our youth. Perhaps we outgrow these dreams . . . or maybe they are ordained to be only transitory, bringing out certain qualities that help mold us into whatever niche Life ultimately assigns us. These thoughts were racing through my mind the other evening at Mountain Lake House as I studied the faces of nearly 200 persons gathered to honor my "boss," Mr. Ernest Wyckoff, and present him with the coveted Golden Deeds Award of the Exchange Club.

As his friend Attorney Arlington Williams pointed out, Mr. Wyckoff had entered Princeton with the intention of becoming a medical doctor. Mr. Williams had originally planned a career, not at law, but in the ministry. And I, when I was a tiny girl just learning to write and read a newspaper, had decided I would be a reporter. Life is strange! On reflection, I am sure it was the love for humanity that prompted Mr. Wyckoff to lean toward medicine, that has made him the great and understanding man he is today. But rather than being tied to an office or the hectic pace of the "family doctor," he is able to establish his own rounds, dispensing kindness, understanding, charity, and advice wherever he is needed whenever that need arises.

The same qualities of Christian life that influenced Mr. Williams in his early ambition for the ministry, have, I am sure, carried into his legal work, and made him a wiser, more understanding man . . . a man who can look beyond the letter of the law and guide his client with sympathy and foresight.

As for me—the interest in people that made me yearn for a reporter's life has, in many ways I believe, helped me in my job of today. I have never ceased to be fascinated by everyone—the woman executive, wearing a Dior dress and a hat, as she dictates to her secretary; the man seated next to me on the bus; the customer trying to decide between a pretty lamp for her living room or a bonnet brimming with posies for the Easter parade. If circumstances permitted, even today I would happily tear off to any part of the world where an interesting story was breaking at the moment . . . London, for a Princess's wedding; Rome, for an interview with the Pope; Los Angeles . . . Chicago . . . points unknown, for any real life drama with an interesting cast of characters.

And who isn't interesting? Almost every person has a hidden motor (sometimes called conscience) that makes him tick in a certain precise key. What, long ago, set the tempo of that tick? What regulates it and keeps it going? What causes it to occasionally cease functioning, or to function falteringly? When it breaks down, how does that person explain it to himself, the world, and his Maker? The answers are often surprising, and you seek them, not for the sake of condemning, but in the hope of understanding.

Because I meet so many people of varied types, I love my job. It may be tedious at times, but never boring. And I am blessed in having an employer who appreciates people fully as much as I, but with perhaps greater tolerance and compassion. Each day at Wyckoff's we see a long and varying procession of people . . . intelligent . . . smart . . . beautiful . . . wholesome . . . The adjectives for each one differ. But for all there is one adjective forever the same—"Interesting." We honor and welcome them all.

It's Highly Improbable

By William A. Doyle

Q. As you know, mutual funds are run either by a board of directors or a board of trustees, who are elected by the shareholders of the fund. Is it possible for a small number of people to buy enough shares of the fund to secure a majority of the votes and take over control of the fund?

William A. Doyle

A. It's possible. But it's darned improbable. Each outoutstanding share in a mutual fund is entitled to one vote on any matter that is to be decided by shareholders —such as the election of directors or trustees.

In theory, a group (or even one person) could buy enough shares to gain control. However, if the mutual fund is of any size, it would take a fantastic amount of money to buy enough shares to control.

A move such as this hasn't happened yet. It's doubtful that it will happen. So far, the shareholders of mutual funds have almost always voted overwhelmingly in favor of management.

About the only reasons an outside group would attempt to take control of a mutual fund would be to obtain the investment advisory and underwriting contract for the fund.

If a fund is big and successful, those contracts provide a big source of income. But as a fund becomes bigger it also becomes more difficult (and more expensive) for an outside group to obtain enough shares to control the fund.

And there is always this angle. Suppose an outside group did obtain control, elect a new slate of directors and obtain the investment advisory and underwriting contracts. A great many of the old shareholders might turn in their shares for redemption and demand cash — as they are entitled to do. After all, shareholders of a mutual fund usually have faith in current management.

Q. I have never been able to find daily price quotations for the mutual funds sponsored by Investors Diversified Services in any newspaper or other publication. The quotations on other funds are printed. Why aren't the quotations on the IDS funds pri.. d?

A. Because IDS doesn't make them available for daily publication. The "pricing" policy of the IDS-sponsored funds is slightly different from that of most other mutual funds.

All mutual funds that continuously offer shares to the public "price" their shares at least once every business day. This is done by adding up all the assets of the fund (its investments, cash, etc.), subtracting the liabilities and dividing by the number of shares outstanding. The resulting figure is the "net asse' value per share."

To the net asset value per share, there is added the selling commission per share. That figure is the price at which a share of the fund is offered to the public. For the IDS-sponsored funds, the commission is 7½ percent of the public offering price.

That public offering price is usually called the "asked" price. Mutual funds are quoted under "bid" and "asked" prices.

The "bid" price for the IDS-sponsored fund (and most other mutual funds) is the asset value per share. Some funds do have a small redemption charge. In those cases, the "bid" price is one percent or so below the asset value per share. The "bid" price is the price you receive if you redeem your shares.

IDS calculates the "bid" and "asked" prices for its funds at the close of each business day. Those prices are in effect on or before the close of business on that day only. Most other funds keep those prices in effect until the next pricing. IDS does not, and also does not have the figures published daily.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Plan For Witnesses Assembly

FINAL PLANS to attend the Circuit Assembly at the Newton, New Jersey, High School May 27th to 29th, were made last night according to Stephen Bortlik, presiding minister of the E. Stroudsburg Congregation.

Speaking on the subject of assembling, he said, "The Apostle Paul writing to the Christians at Hebrews chapter 10, verse 25, stressed its importance; 'Not forsaking the gathering of ourselves together . . . and all the more so as you behold the day drawing near.'" He continued, "Most people are familiar with the activities surrounding conventions of Jehovah's witnesses. As in the days of Jesus, when some Greeks were among those who assembled, so today at these assemblies, opportunity is afforded others to attend in addition to those of the local congregation."

Seek Greater Number

He stressed that, "Since these are the last days the need for a greater number to gather becomes more apparent. Because of the expansion in our circuit, it became necessary to arrange for one-half of the twenty congregations to attend the assembly at Newton, New Jersey. It is expected that upward to 1,000 will attend.

"Arrangements have been made for 48, including whole families, to attend," he continued. "as these gatherings are beneficial and instructive to all, both children and adults. These have kept delinquency among Jehovah's Witnesses so low as to cause favorable comment from those interested in controlling such ideas and conduct."

The convention theme is "Seek Peace and Pursue It," and the featured address will be delivered on Sunday at 3 p.m. by Mr. Kenneth Savoy, district supervisor of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society. His subject will be, "Finding Peace in a Troubled World."

All meetings are free and the public is invited.

Proposal Put Off

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said Wednesday night President Eisenhower's new, broadened open skies plan would not be submitted to the U. N. Security Council until September.

Rep. Walter Introduces Legislation On Contempt

CONGRESSMAN Francis E. Walter (D-Pa) yesterday, introduced a bill amending the contempt statutes to provide that misbehavior in the presence of either House of the Congress, or any Committee thereof, shall constitute a misdemeanor.

"The Communist inspired and directed riots which occurred at the recent hearings of this Committee in San Francisco demonstrate the urgency of Congressional action so that order can be maintained in Congressional proceedings," Congressman Walter stated. "I do not believe the Congress of the United States can any longer sanction the disruption of Congressional hearings caused by the very Communist agents who are under investigation. The effect of my bill is to make such conduct a misdemeanor punishable the same as misbehavior before a court.

"The members of the Committee on Un-American Activities are accustomed to abuse and vilification which are the normal hazards of employment in our work, but we can no longer tolerate attempts by Communist agents to take over the hearings or to make it impossible for us to proceed in an orderly manner. No court in the land would tolerate for an instant the disruptive tactics which have now become common practice by Communist agents during proceedings of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

Lily-Of-The-Valley Finest Shrub Known

By George Abraham

A GOOD SHRUB — One of the finest shrubs I know is the "Lily - of - the - Valley" shrub, Pieris (pronounced Pie-ear-is) floribunda. Also called Mountain Anromeda or Japanese Andromeda, this valuable broad-leaved evergreen shrub is ideal for gateway plantings, fine as accent plants in the shrub border, and is fine in rock gardens. Flowers are composed of tiny cream-colored waxy bells resmbling Lily-of-the-Valley blooms, and occurring in May. My wife uses the flowers in corsage work, and they can be tinted any color merely by dipping them in cake coloring or florists' dyes.

Two Andromedas

There are two Andromedas that I know of. One is P. floribunda, sometimes listed as Andromeda floribunda. The other is Mountain Andromeda or the native Pieris floribunda, which is a lot hardier. I've had good luck raising the Japanese Andromeda and favor it because the foliage changes to a bronzy red during the winter. Some gardeners enjoy its beauty indoors as it will bloom just before Christmas if forced in a large flower pot.

Culture: Andromedas prefer shade and a well drained, peaty soil. They are slow growing, and should be kept mulched with leaves, sawdust or peat. Height 7-8 feet. You'll like the leathery foliage and the white, bell-shaped flowers that drape over. If you want something different, here is the shrub to plant.

Glass Containers

Are glass containers (colored) bad for growing foliages in? There's a notion among gardeners that green glass containers are bad for growing indoor vines and foliages, and brown glass is beneficial. Actually, there's no truth to the idea. It makes no difference whether the glass is clear or colored, although clear glass is more objectionable because you can see the roots growing, if that is any objection.

Squirrels

What's the best way to keep squirrels from eating rose buds, lily buds and tips of evergreens? It's not an easy problem to solve, although one of our readers places a plastic bag over the lily buds and canna tips. Another reader tells me he keeps squirrels out by placing moth balls around his lilies. Squirrels and chipmunks are known to take tuberous begonia tubers, lily bulbs and tulip bulbs from the ground and carry them off. I know of no way to prevent them from such damage. Does anyone have a sure cure for squirrels, chipmunks and similar pests? Please write and tell me so we can pass this information along. I have a bulletin which has some ideas in it on squirrel and chipmunk control and you may have a free copy if you send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. M. of Stroudsburg: "For the past three years our tomatoes have been quite sour. Does this mean our soil is in need of lime. I always heard tomatoes require a sour soil. Is that true?"

I don't think soil acidity has anything to do with the flavor of tomatoes as they are considered moderately tolerant of acid soils. Tomatoes do well on soils from pH 5.5 to 6.8, which means an acid range.

I wish I knew which variety you grow, as this makes a big difference. For example, the old Earliana (which many old-time gardeners grow) is one tomato I've discontinued in our greenhouse because it's such a sour fruited type. Valiant, a fine early tomato is considered sour by some, and one of its parents is Earliana. I'd like to see you try a sweeter tasting tomato such as Glamour, Moreton Hybrid, Red Jacket or Homestead.

Nutritional Difficulty

Sour flavor may sometimes be due to some nutritional difficulty, or weather factor, although I think the variety itself is why you have sour tomatoes.

D. L. of Bartonsville: "Our grape vine died out, and grape growers tell me that I should not set a new vine in a vineyard where a vine is missing. They say the new vine will not grow. Is that true?"

Yes, this is true. When a young grape plant is planted in a vineyard where an old vine has been removed, the new plant generally grows poorly. This is partly due to the fact that the soil at that location is invaded by roots from the nearby mature vines and the new, young plant is unable to compete for food and moisture.

Another important soil factor is biological in nature. If young vines are planted where an entire vineyard has been removed, these young plants will grow at only half the rate of their potential. This is due to grape phylloxera (a root louse), nematodes, or some other parasite persisting in the soil from the vines previously grown at that location.

Try Layering

If you want to fill in a missing vine, try layering one from a nearby vine. Grape growers in our area do this. First, they allow the vine to rest on the ground, and the tip is covered with soil. It roots and then it is cut from the parent plant. If you set out a new grape vine, simply try to locate it in a different spot.

Incidentally, I'd like to remind our grape growing friends to keep their vines covered with a spray of copper to prevent downy mildew, or powdery mildew. Copper is an old fungicide and it still is effective for checking grape diseases. In fact, most grape growers I knew still use copper sprays on their grapes.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Another day, another fresh start! The way we should approach every day. Doesn't the Sun rise again each day? The green appear every Spring? Keep at that worthy endeavor.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Take on as many items to get done as reasonable, but say "no" where strength or nerves would be over-taxed. Why not a few minutes shut-eye if your pace is brisk? Advantages.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't daily because it is the weekend, you may be too rushed later. Prepare, plan carefully. Spend some time with youngsters, you can aid them with concise thinking.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — If you do not succeed immediately, try again, and again, many times. Practice makes perfect, draws friends, admiration, eventually makes way easier to greater achievement.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Don't do too much at once, you will not do sufficiently well in any one thing. Day specially favors unique issues, helping the underprivileged, looking in neglected corners to aid others.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) —Fine for general accomplishment. Take things in order. Firsts before Seconds; maintain proper diet. On improvement list: everyday matters, agriculture, education.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) —Planet Venus' favorable aspect urges your talents forward, says to give inspiration and ambition renewed vigor. Education, issues, young people and oldsters call attention.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — If something isn't quite right, take time to adjust it, talk it over with sound minds, deliberate before acting. Then take definite steps and stride forward confidently.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — May not seem as amenable a day at beginning. It will require your good will, good cheer, good work to put it in good working order, then it will produce grandly for you.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Among many favored under happy aspects now: Artistry, domestic matters (carefully handled); oldsters', youngsters' affairs. A word to the wise says be discreet, calm.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — The whole will be more pleasing naturally if the parts are perfected to your best ability. Employer, employe, scientist, teacher, student, farmer can gain new benefits.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Conduct, procedure, associations loom as important (they usually are), though often seem in the background. Apathy, unwise undertakings could be biggest tempters.

YOU BORN TODAY have many appitudes for which to be thankful. A lively, socialable manner, as a rule; can make friends easily. Be careful with whom you associate, enthusiasm can get into wrong company. Others lean your abilities; this is all right if you do not strain. Your versatility helps you and others to enjoy life more. Gemini often tends to the unusual, to discovery, bringing out the unexpected. Don't deplete your energies, nurture them with occasional quiet reflection, sufficient sleep, happy companions. Birthday of: noted writers, speakers, singers; people skilled with hands and practicality; surgeons, artisans.

Lt. Col. Edward Moran

Depot Aide Cited At Banquet

TOBYHANNA — Lt. Col. Edward E. Moran, deputy commander of the U.S. Army Signal Corps depot here since 1957, was honored at a farewell party Wednesday night in the depot officers' club.

Col. Moran leaves here next month to assume a post in the Pentagon at Washington, D. C.

Highlight of the program was the presentation of a Distinguished Service Medal to Moran for "dynamic leadership" and "outstanding ability in solving problems" during his tour of duty here. It was presented by Col. Lester W. Kale, depot commander.

Confederate Flag

Moran also received a Confederate flag from depot employes, presented by Seldon Ponder of Mt. Pocono; a bottle of corn liquor, presented by William J. Howard of Stroudsburg, a native of Kentucky, "from one southerner to another," and a plaque marking the 100th anniversary of the Signal Corps, being celebrated this year, from Maj. William Magee, chief of the maintainance division.

Moran's wife, Jean, was presented a cigaret box.

Area Lions Heard At Convention

DELEGATES from the Stroudsburg Lions Club attending the state convention at Philadelphia the first of this week, had first hand information as to the popularity of the Monroe-Pike area with convention groups. When the selection of a site for next year's convention was under discussion a strong movement to hold the event at Atlantic City developed and there was a long debate. While the local area had not been proposed as a site, many delegates spoke of the great success achieved here two years ago and of the wonderful natural gifts for such meetings found right here.

The matter was ultimately tabled for the present.

Program Chairman, Dr. Gail Fegley presented Rev. Wesley Devitt, a non-sectarian missionary in the Kilimanjaro region of Africa, who appeared before the club for a return visit and showed pictures of the great game hunting regions in that area and also displayed many trophies of the chase he being a big game hunter as well as clergyman.

He told also of the work done at the mission schools and churches under his direction.

Transfer Member

Steve Kosko, formerly of the Barrett club, now a Stroudsburg resident, was received into club membership by transfer.

Lions Paul Maxwell and Joseph McCloskey, delegates to the state convention reported on the session.

Lion William P. Deering reported on plans for the annual Independence Day meeting of the club which will be combined this year with Stephen Foster Day, the great composer having been born on the nation's birthday.

The event will be observed on Tuesday night, June 28, the nearest available date to the holiday, and will be an informal ladies night. Music will include Foster selections, dinner, and a patriotic address delivered by Prof. Robert Brown, former head of the Stroudsburg schools.

Barrett CC Fete June 1

BARRETT — The Barrett Community Club will hold a dinner meeting at Clyde's Tavern on Wednesday evening, June 1, at 7 p.m. This dinner will be given by the non-charter members for all charter members of the club, and will feature a surprising climax.

All club members, charter or non-charter, are asked to call Mrs. Siggie Larsen, Dinner Chairman, by Monday, May 30, to inform her if they will attend the dinner.

Present production of diamonds in South Africa is valued at more than 50 million dollars annually.

SCUBA Diving Becoming A Top Water Activity

SCUBA Diving is fast making a bid for the number one water sport title in the country.

Developed in 1949 SCUBA (Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus) took the place of closed circuit breathing devices, which were unpopular, because of the great danger of oxygen poisoning.

In the closed circuit set-up, exhaled air was filtered through a lime substance and re-breathed by the diver. In SCUBA diving, the swimmer breathes from compressed air tanks, with the carbon dioxide expended into the water.

"Y" Starts Class

The Monroe County YMCA is conducting a SCUBA course on Thursday nights, with Dick Jennings and Norm Weatherly as instructors.

Jennings was formerly in the Navy with UDT (Under water demolition team) while Weatherly has been diving for about five years.

The initial cost of SCUBA diving is higher than in most sports, but their are no green fees or court rental charges involved once the diver has the necessary equipment.

A diver must have the breathing apparatus, which runs from $75 to $250 and weighs about 50-pounds.

Weightless In Water

"The tanks make it hard to stand up out of water but when you are submerged, they are almost weightless," Weatherly explained.

Each tank holds an hour air supply, provided the diver stays above the 33-feet level. "The lower you dive," says Weatherly, "the more air you use."

The tanks must be refilled from a certified air supply, that has been filtered three times. Refills cost $1.25.

Face masks run from $4.95 to $6.95 and if the mask fills with water while the diver is submerged, the swimmer rolls on his back, press the top front of the mask and exhales through his nose. The water is forced out of the bottom and sides of the mask.

Belt, Knife Extra

Flippers sell for about $10 and complete the necessary equipment. However a weighted belt to keep the swimmer down, a knife and snorkel are items that should be included in the gear.

The knife is not primarily a weapon but a safety measure, in case the diver must cut himself free from underwater growth or ropes.

"The snorkel is also a safety device," says Weatherly. "If a diver runs out of air several miles from shore and must swim in, he can swim several feet below the surface if he has a snorkel.

By swimming underneath the water, the diver does not have to worry about holding his head up and won't tire as easily."

Warm Wet Suit

Rubber suits add to the diver's comfort, especially in cold water. There are two types of garments a "wet" and "dry" suit.

The wet suit is constructed of a type of foam rubber. The suit permits water to flow in, which is warmed by the body temperature and keeps the diver heated, even in extremely frigid water.

The dry suit keeps the water out but the diver must wear his own insulation, such as long underwear. "The best combination," says Weatherly, "is a wet suit worn under a dry one."

There are several hazards connected with SCUBA diving but they can be minimized if the fledgling diver learns how to use his gear properly before starting to dive.

Pressure Hazards

Some of the hazards include unequal pressure, which results from not being able to equalize the water pressure in all parts of the body, particularly the sinus cavities. "People with colds should not dive," says Weatherly, "as they will have a hard time equalizing the pressure in the head cavities."

Air embolism is a common trouble among novices. It is brought about from too great an intake of air, which could rupture the air sacs in the lungs and allow air bubbles to enter the left side of the heart, causing dizziness, paralysis or even death.

Face squeeze can lead to serious injury but usually leaves the diver with nothing more than a red ring around his face, outlining the face mask. The squeeze is caused by rapid increase or decrease of pressure inside the mask.

California and Florida boast the greatest number of SCUBA divers but Northeast Pennsylvania has a growing representation. The Lackawanna Divers' Assn. with headquarters in Scranton has about 63 fully equipped members.

The sport is only about nine-years-old but its impact has been responsible for a television series, diving schools and man's return to the sea, to see what he can see.

Pocono Lake Wins Monroe Loop Crown

POCONO Lake whipped Polk 8-6 to wrap-up the Monroe Scholastic League Thursday.

The win gives the Lakers an 8-0 mark and a three game lead over second-place Pocono Twp., which handed Barrett a 4-3 loss yesterday. Chestnuthill upset Coolbaugh 7-6 in the third game.

Thursday's play ended the schedule of loop games, however, there are a few rained out games still remaining. The postponed games will not effect the Lakers top spot and may not be played.

Dunlap Wins

Ralph Dunlap went all they way for the Tobyhanna team, although he gave up six runs, three of them earned. He allowed four hits, walked four and fanned nine.

The Lakers got to three Polk pitchers for nine hits, with the loss going to Hinton.

The game was tied 4-4 going into the bottom of the fifth but Pocono Lake pushed across four runs to take an 8-4 lead.

Polk got two runs back in the next frame but could get no closer.

Woehrle Gets 3

Dan Woehrle posted a double and two singles in three trips for the Lakers and his teammate John Franks added two doubles.

W. Smith and Bill Borger each had a double for the losers.

Coolbaugh riding a two-game winning streak, gave Chestnuthill six runs in the second inning but tied the game 6-6 in the top of the seventh. The Hillers pushed across a run in the bottom of the inning for their second win against six setbacks.

Troeller, the third Chestnuthill hurler picked-up the win, while Pete Daily was tagged with the loss.

Troeller, Ressler and Fritz limited the losers to only two hits, singles by Wright and Rolph Kuhlow.

Pocono Twp. did all its scoring in the third frame in downing Barrett.

Peter Ask went the distance for the winners, giving Barrett only four hits.

Strouds Lose To Creekers On Errors

STROUDSBURG'S Strouds dropped their second game in two days, 5-4 to Martin's Creek, in a six-inning game called because of darkness.

Stroudsburg's Al Schoch gave the home team only four hits but three unearned runs in the third inning, cost him the game.

Plaza and Hal Jacobsen were guilty of wild throws in the inning, allowing three runs to score and Goldworth's homer brought in the other run.

Score Twice

The Strouds scored twice in the fifth on a homer by Plaza and McCormick's double that scored Lem Isom.

The locals got two more in the sixth. McCormick singled sending home Plaza, who had reached first on a fielder's choice and Isom, who walked.

MR. PRESIDENT

by Patrick and Vinmont

JOHN TYLER

Born in Greenway, Virginia, March 29, 1790. He graduated from College of William and Mary, 1806, and three years later was admitted to the bar. At 21 he was a member of the Virginia legislature; at 26 a member of Congress; at 35 governor of Virginia; at 37 a United States senator. Re-elected to the Senate, 1833, he resigned rather than obey instructions of the legislature that he vote to remove the censure passed upon Jackson for transferring government deposits from the U. S. Bank.

Known to be a Democrat, he was nominated by the Whigs as Vice-President to attract votes of the slave-holding South, and was elected in 1840. He became the tenth President of the United States when Harrison died, April 4, 1841. His first act was to veto a banking bill. This started a political revolution resulting in the resignation of every cabinet member, except Webster. True to the principles he was known to have when nominated Vice-President, he appointed a Democratic pro-slavery cabinet.

During his administration the first message by telegraph was sent—between Washington and Baltimore—and Texas, a slave-holding state, was annexed. Sixteen years after retirement, he became chairman of the peace conference at Washington, 1861, which endeavored to avert the Civil War. He died at Richmond, Virginia, January 18, 1862, aged 71.

ROGER BROOKE TANEY

Born in Calvert County, Maryland, 1777. He graduated from Dickinson College in 1795. After two years of law study he practiced law. He served as a state senator, 1816-21 and as attorney general of Maryland, 1827-31. Appointed attorney general of the United States in 1831, he served until 1835 when he became Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Taney (pictured above) served as Chief Justice during the administrations of nine Presidents until his death in 1864. His opinion on the Dred Scott case, rendered in 1857—that Congress had no power to abolish slavery in territory acquired after the formation of the national government—further excited the discord between the North and South and was one of the direct causes of the Civil War.

Tyler did not have a Vice-President.

MRS. JOHN TYLER

Letitia Christian was born in Virginia in 1790. At twenty-three she married John Tyler. For nearly thirty years, until her death in 1842, her strong common sense and excellent judgment were relied on by Tyler in his career in state and national politics. Possessed of an air of quiet courtesy, she won the commendation of all as hostess of the Executive mansion when her husband was governor of Virginia. An invalid when she came to the White House, her married daughters, Mary and Letitia, often presided for her at receptions but the constant task of hostess was delegated to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Tyler.

In 1844, President Tyler married Julia Gardiner. Socially trained, and with a youthful zest for her position, she dazzled Washington during the remaining eight months of her husband's tenure, with gay and brilliant functions. Julia Gardiner Tyler was born in New York, 1820. She died in 1889.

Spying Shady But Needed In World

By George W. Cornell
Associated Press Religion Writer

SPYING is shady business, but it's needed for survival in a shady world.

That, in short, is the conclusion voiced by a number of religious authorities today, as nations seethed over the conduct of espionage.

"It belongs to that class of things that are morally ambiguous but sometimes necessary," says the Rev. Dr. Daniel D. Williams, of Union Theological Seminary.

Both Christian and Jewish scholars offer a similar view—that espionage involves questionable behavior, but that it may be warranted by overriding facts of international life.

Immoral Act

"It's an immoral act for what we think is a moral purpose—the defense of our country and ideals," says Rabbi Dr. Robert Gordis, of Jewish Theological Seminary, New York. "It's a tragic necessity, at best."

In other words, it demands deception, stealth and other activity that impinges on ethical tenets, but which in the face of circumstances, may serve a greater, overbalancing good.

"You can't divorce moral practice from reality," says the Very Rev. Dean Edmond Benard, dean of the School of Sacred Theology of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C.

"In an ideal world, espionage would not be morally justified. But this isn't that kind of world, and if we must have certain information to protect our nation against threats and subversion, our government has an obligation to get it.

"If there is no other way, then we are justified in using espionage."

Shadowy Image

Down through history, the spy has left a dubious, shadowy image, immersed in doubledealing, masquerade, prying into the privacy of others under false pretenses and sham. But it has remained a standard trade of nations.

"It is part of the general immorality of war," Dr. Gordis says. "It is one of the instrumentalities of war, and represents a kind of suspension of ethical principles, the same as on the battlefield.

"It's part of the tragic dilemma of existing in a world that doesn't live by moral principles. It sheds light on the tragic moral devices inhering in our civilization in not fulfilling the purposes it believes in."

Both the godly and ungodly rulers of Biblical days used spies. Scripture also speaks of a contrast between "spies" and "true men." But it lays down no specific injunctions on the matter.

Space Age Issues Hit By Takers

NEW YORK (AP)—Space age issues and other trading favorites were snagged by late profit taking Thursday and the stock market posted an irregular decline. Trading was active.

It was a mixed market all day but late in the session many gainers slid as turnover increased. By the close, 555 stocks were losers, and 457 were gainers of the 1229 issues traded.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped .20 to 215.70 with the industrials up .20, the rails down .90 and the utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 stocks, thanks to gains by some pivotal blue chips, posted a gain of 1.51 at 622.79.

Steels Helped

Steels were helped early in the session by forecasts of industry leaders of an upturn in production this summer but the steel stocks faded into irregularity late in the day. Chemicals, aircrafts and drugs also were mixed. Rails, tobaccos, coppers and big three motors declined.

Eleven of the 15 most active stocks advanced and four declined.

American Stock Exchange prices were generally higher on volume of 1,580,000 shares compared with 1,530,000 Wednesday.

Corporate bonds rose in moderately active trading.

U.S. government bonds advanced. Dealings were quiet.

Bond trading amounted to $5,890,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange compared with $5,820,000 Wednesday.

Donald J. Perry added:

"You don't think P. DiFalco was swimming in February, do you?"

Perry received the letter after he agreed to take the case of two Cambria County residents who claimed they had made a sizeable hit on the numbers and did not get paid off.

DiFalco's body was identified by his wife and two brothers. The coroner's office said identification was made from a wound on the left foot DiFalco received during a torpedoing of a boat in World War II.

The body, nude except for a sock and a shoe on the right foot, was found floating in the dam Wednesday by three Westmoreland County employes. It may have been washed from one of three creeks that feed the dam.

The Westmoreland County coroner's office said the stab wounds caused the right lung to collapse and death was not caused by drowning. The body had been in the water since early February, the coroner's office said.

Ike-K Split Seen Big Note To GOP

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

THE split between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, creating a diplomatic vacuum, may have an important impact on the Republican National Convention.

Until this week it appeared that the international situation would bear primarily on the presidential campaign after the conventions.

Now, with Nelson A. Rockefeller back on the willing list, events within the vacuum during the next few weeks could affect Vice President Richard M. Nixon's nomination chances, especially if the vacuum seems to be producing danger, and people and delegates become wary of its indefinite prolongation because Nixon and Khrushchev also are split.

Rocky's Move

The possibility of such a development obviously lies behind Rockefeller's move, along with the desire to hold the New York delegation together, uncommitted and in a position to take advantage of any turn.

The move also makes his voice a little louder as he goes about discussing national issues and so making the party heard in a period when the Democrats have been making most of the noise. Rockefeller obviously wants a role in the U2 debate.

This debate has divided both parties.

In trying to take advantage of the administration errors that played into Khrushchev's hands before the summit, the Democrats also must try to sidestep any appeasement label. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts already is having trouble differentiating between the "regrets" which he would have expressed to the Soviet Union over U2, and the "condemnation" which Khrushchev demanded and Eisenhower refused.

Khrushchev's praise for Franklin D. Roosevelt along with his castigation of Eisenhower seemed to be an expression of party preference which puts the Democrats on something of a spot.

On One Wheel

Meanwhile, the peace and prosperity gocart of the Republicans is running on only one wheel. This could cause the convention delegates to take a closer look, weighing election chances a little more carefully.

Today Nixon's organization is still firmly entrenched.

But as Rockefeller said, things can and do change rapidly these days.

Autopsy Shows Death By Stabbing

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP)—An autopsy showed Thursday a 45-year-old man whose decomposed body was fished from the Conemaugh Dam was stabbed to death by an ice pick or a thin-bladed knife.

The victim was identified by the Westmoreland County coroner's office as Joseph (Pippy) DiFalco, 45, of Johnstown. He had been missing since Feb. 7.

Johnstown police said DiFalco was known to be a frequent visitor of gambling establishments and had a reputation for betting on horses and other gambling events.

State police and Cambria County detectives had joined Westmoreland County officials to determine if there was any link with Cambria County gambling elements.

Several weeks ago a Johnstown attorney received a threatening letter telling him to stay out of a numbers betting case.

COMING UP FAST: Happy-Go-Lucky Me — Paul Evans

'Pike Seeking Safety Of GIs

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission has written to 15,000 servicemen in the area to encourage safety on the superhighway over the Memorial Day weekend.

The theme of the letter is "72 hour passes can be killers."

"We are not charging service people with being poor or dangerous drivers," said Chairman Joseph J. Lawler, "but this is just another campaign in the interests of safety to encourage this specialized group to drive safely. Because the military has control of its personnel, we can reach them adequately and get wide distribution of our message."

The letter winks at the ban on hitchhiking on the turnpike, describing it as "a must for a great many servicemen."

It advises hitchhiking servicemen to "be sure the guy or gal behind the wheel is a safe, careful driver."

"You can tell after a few minutes in the car or truck, and if unsafe, ask them to let you out immediately. There are plenty of good drivers coming along who will give you another lift. It is better to get home and back to the base in one piece and not in a box—isn't it?"

For those servicemen driving, the letter urges frequent stops to rest ("every two hours or every 100 miles"), attention to the road and attention to the mechanical condition of the car.

Old Age Man Reaches Age

CUMBERLAND, R. I. (AP) — Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI), the man who has caused so much talk about the "social security age" of 65, reached that milestone himself yesterday.

He and Mrs. Forand spent 10 hours of the day driving in drizzle, fog, and blinding rain from Rhode Island to Washington.

Forand's proposal to incorporate a program for medical care for the aged under Social Security started a national controversy.
